Moms for America Warns of mRNA Vaccine in Food Supply and Calls for Transparency Bill

Branson, Missouri—Moms for America opposes the treatment of cattle and hogs with mRNA vaccines without public disclosure. The attempt to vaccinate animals raised for food with an untested gene therapy threatens the food supply of Americans and undermines public trust. People have a right to know what is in their food.

Big Pharma sees our food as a backdoor to distributing this dangerous vaccine with unknown consequences for short-term and long-term health. For this reason, Moms for America strongly supports Missouri House Bill 1169, a transparency measure that would require labeling food and cosmetics that can act as a gene therapy.

Concerned Americans are calling on legislators in Missouri to support this commonsense measure. Missouri HB 1169 does not ban anything but simply requires disclosure of risks in the products we consume.

Another important reason to pass transparency and labeling legislation now is to protect farmers and ranchers from litigation. When people develop potentially lethal or lifelong health complications from consuming gene therapies they did not know about, Big Pharma should have to pay. Disclosure protects our local farmers and ranchers.

For Americans in other states, the issue is no less pressing. Moms for America supports the introduction of similar bills in other states in order to require the disclosure of potential gene therapies in our food, cosmetics, and soap.

Moms for America has spoken with many people in Missouri and across the United States who want to know what is in their food. We have also spoken with farmers and ranchers who do not want their children and grandchildren exposed to these products any more than we do. Moms are prepared to vote with their dollars and support the local food producers who can ensure the purity of their products.

Legislators should protect the interests of their constituents. In the case of Big Pharma's attempt to sneak untested vaccines into the food supply, the rights of everyday Americans come before the interests of big lobby groups. Pass legislation requiring the disclosure of gene therapies in our food and giving Americans the ability to protect themselves and their families.
